1958

Halifax Grammar School was founded in 1958, the brainchild of a group of parents who were concerned about the education of their children. They wanted to set up a school which would provide a well-balanced education based on solid academics. These parents raised funds, hired staff, registered students, and over a 10-day period converted a house on Tower Road into a school. In September of that year, the Halifax Grammar School opened its doors to 53 students.

According to one of the school's founders, Dr. John Szerb, the first budget did not allow for a cleaning staff to prepare the school for its first students. "Early in September 1958, a number of parents went in with paint brushes, buckets, mops and dusters and the school was ready for classes," he says. Many parents also taught classes to the young boys -- physicians teaching anatomy and accountants giving lessons in math.

The principals on which the school was founded can be summed up as a joint commitment of parents and of teachers to an enriched curriculum which meets the educational goals of families concerned with the future of their children.

Due to the high demand for an HGS education, the school's present site on Atlantic Street was purchased and a larger school was built in 1962. Two years later, the school became co-educational.

Since its doors opened, the Grammar Schools' enrolment has grown to over 500 students in grades Primary through 12.

This year marks the 45th anniversary of the Halifax Grammar School.

HGS celebrates 45 Years of Excellence

Headmaster's Message

This has been an exciting year at HGS— too exciting you might say. Hurricane Juan tested our mettle in many ways, and students responded spontaneously to the challenges to help their school. Indeed, one of many positive results of Hurricane Juan, and the damage to Tower Road, was that it evoked strong proprietary feelings in so many students.

Since then, administrative staff has had to adapt to temporary quarters in the Atlantic Street Campus while Middle School teachers have had to maintain a regular teaching schedule in the cramped quarters of the neighbouring Atlantic School of Theology. In the meantime, our regular programs have kicked into gear with a great soccer season, new talent matched with seasoned talent on the debating team, and everyone anticipating a wonderful basketball season.

The Grammar School, as the name implies, however, is all about a rigorous academic program. In that regard, I always liked the comment by John Schaffner, the former Head of St. John's Ravenscourt School, who said,

“ Everyone sees the world through their own keyhole – our job is to make those keyholes bigger! ”

I hope that is the case with the Class of 2004.

Mr. John A. Messenger

Yearbook Message

Dear HGS Students, Faculty and Families,

We are happy to present you with the Grammarians 2004. This book is the culmination of many long hours of planning and much time spent in front of our temperamental yearbook computer. Indeed, starting in September 2003, we were given a very difficult task. Earlier deadlines were enforced so that we could have our yearbook by June graduation. There were also some disagreements about how we should proceed, however, as you can see, everything came together in the end.

The five of us spent long hours meeting, planning layouts, and learning new publishing software to satisfy a good deal of CAS hours. However, we weren't in it for that. We wished to create the best yearbook possible, and we are confident that the events, activities, and people in it represent the school year of 2003/2004. The cooperation of staff and students was very important and did not go unnoticed. Most importantly, we want to give a big thank you to Ms. Greenough, the yearbook staff, and Herff Jones - you were all amazing and it was wonderful to work with you.

Again, enjoy this year's Grammarians and give a round of applause to everyone involved in its creation.

Thank you!!

Head of Senior School Message

Mr. Matthew Moffatt

As I write this, my first comment for the Grammarian, most of the year is ahead of us; Senior School students have not yet carved the pumpkins or prepared the haunted house for Halloween. Nevertheless, even in such a short time, we have experienced extremes of weather, moments of excitement and calm, enjoyed good times and pulled together in bad. The graduating class had a magical weekend at Keji. We could not have asked for better weather. A good time was had by all, despite Mr. Messenger's near "drowning" in the Head Master's chase. Three weeks later the Tower Road Campus was devastated by Hurricane Juan. Now, as I am trying to craft reference letters for many of you, I am awestruck by the talent of our graduating class. Many of you are off to different parts of the globe next year, determined to make your mark on the world. Remember your roots, as you are carving your name into your next project. Remember the years you spent at HGS preparing for the "real world," sharpening your tools and honing your skills. The graduating class is a gifted group of individuals, blessed with an excellent education from, what I believe to be, one of the finest groups of teachers in Canada. Good luck in the years ahead. Make the most of your natural talents and the skills you have cultivated here at HGS. Stay in touch and keep well.

Student Council Message

Well, we haven't been working together very long (November yearbook deadline...) but so far it's been a blast. Winning the elections was half the battle, this is the fun part. We can't really say how much we've achieved since the judges of that are you guys, the students. But, we had a lot of fun and we hope good times were had all around. Thanks a ton to Mr. Moffatt, our second father, that man is amazing. United we stand against the empire.

SABIH ABBASI

In vain he has struggled. It will not do. He loves Jane Austen. Whether posing as our Soanish teacher to get us into R-rated movies, or defending justice as Cy-bih, with his Cy-bih Eye-laser, Sabih's greatly enriched our lives these past few, (too few), years. Although he's been known to drive people insane in movie theatres ('shut up Sabih, pass it on'), he'll be remembered for his bitterly fought poetry showdowns with Gwen; both taking equal honors. And we'll all be waiting for his next philosophy book, published through his alter-ego, Bertie Russ. We'll miss Sabih almost as much as we miss Sirius ("Why, oh why?!")

"I can't think of no other histrionic Pakistani capable of criticizing Peter Jackson's interpretation of Tolkien's epic, and skillfully disguising himself as a 17 year-old high school student at the same time. These two years have been a pleasure Sabih, and let the Rage live on for all eternity" -Daniel King

Grade five I believe it was when Mike entered the world of Grammar to make a strong and lasting impression on all of us. He stayed until sadly departed to Rhode Island in grade nine where anything was possible, and did happen. Two years later Mike returned as if he was only gone for a day. He is one of a kind, with a big heart, great mind, quick humor and extensive intellect. He is an amazing friend and is sure to make a lasting impression wherever he goes.

Best of luck in the future, I know whatever you do will be a great success.

MICHAEL AIKENS

Charles, clearly the only way to effectively express your amazingness is through a terrible extended metaphor.... And so, kind readers, I'd like to invoke in you the smell, texture and taste of something marvellous, something surprisingly wonderful, something called bubble tea.

First, pure sweetness sucked up through a big fat straw. Yes, this is Charles, immediately you are met with this rush of sweetness, a kindness and caring that makes you feel cozy and safe in his presence. To have a friend like Charles is to know that when you are panicky and downtrodden, he cares. In the most genuine way, he is there right when you need him. Count on it. And yet within this gush of refreshingly compassionate friendship we are suddenly met with a chewy bubble of Charles' wit. Delightful nuggets of entertainment packaged in the most unassuming, modest form, but the more you chew the more wonderful and interesting they become, much to the jealousy of some your peers (hi), you are witty.

You, the bubble tea of the human world, are a pleasure. Never forget that you bring pure pleasantness into the lives of all those around you. It's addictive, this bubble tea stuff, I want more and more... always discovering new flavours. And so it is with Charles, belaboured metaphor or not, bottom line: Charles is wonderfully fun and caring, the more you know him the more you see and want.

"These are the days of miracle and wonder..." -Lael

CHARLES ARMOUR

"Choices made today, impact tomorrow" - Doug, Carol & Mitchell Lesbriel

Since B (as she is affectionately called) is a lifer here at Grammar, many wonder why she hasn't gone insane. Because despite her obsessive compulsiveness, ridiculous late night study habits, her tendency toward a split personality and the fact that she spends most of her waking hours with a bunch of smelly horses, she is relatively sane, but who am I to judge? Bridget has taken the meaning of "leader" of Free the Children to new heights ever since grade eight. One of Bridget's favourite pass times is conversing with her celebrity friends such as Burton Cummings of the Guess Who and dreaming fondly of Sam Roberts.

Throughout the years Bridget has ogled over a few young lads, but her heart has never strayed far from one in particular.

She threw us a few good parties, especially fun grade eight ones and some crazy pre-dance shin digs. Oh yeah, we also stole a couch named Johan. Whatever happened to him? And remember S Club 7, oh god. Throughout our friendship Bridget never ceased to amaze, confuse, entertain or comfort me. Wouldn't it be nice Bridget, wouldn't it be nice!

BRIDGET ARSENAULT

ANDREW BAKER

Andrew Baker is a complicated man. What can be said of this legendary guy? We'll start off by saying that Baker (what he is most commonly known as) has been at Grammar for three years but has undoubtedly left his mark. This guy was a whiz on the soccer pitch and is loved by all for his stellar effort. As for school work, the guy is a major keener, even though he tries to play it cool. Baker could be found kickin it with his friends Justin Hack and Simon Delva at school, but when he is not in school he can be found with his long time girlfriend Katie Prowse. It can be easily said that Baker is a very loyal and dedicated person. He has been with his girlfriend for over 2 years! That's an amazing accomplishment in its self! The legend that is Andrew Baker will echo through the "hall" that is the Halifax Grammar School for years to come. Remember his name because he'll probably be your family doctor some day!

"Stay brown". -Avinash Jay

"Just do it...I'll give you the knife..."-Justin Hack

"So Andrew, I hear you got caught smoking?"-Mr. Moffatt

Attempting to boil down all the experiences and thoughts of this boy, Josef Beeby is a task that I find overwhelmingly daunting... there are few people I know who have such a huge personality. Yes, it's huge. A powerful force that is magnetic in its enthusiasm and interest. It's a force that, when in its presence, cannot be ignored. Being with Josef is like sitting in a room with a pot of corn popping without the lid on, bursting in every direction into the room, his humour and musings are pounced on as everyone scrambles to gobble them up. So, in 200 words I'm to endeavour to understand this crazy person who I can't help but be drawn to. Where to begin? Josef's a wildly creative, passionate person. With teeth-gritting determination he is painfully single minded in reaching for what he wants. The pleasure of spending time with somebody this intense is large... never boring, an exciting if startling big game where winning feels as good as a digested corn nut. Josef, may you never lose your zeal and incredible sense of fun. You have been a hoot to do things with, and let us raise our bubble tea glasses and say... To dreams! To hope! To love! And don't you forget... be happy."-Lael "Josef is one of those few people in this world who's learned one very important thing about life.....it is simply a system of control, and he isn't going to play that game without making his own rules. Rule number one: If you meet an Agent in the streets, fight him and wait for the moment to come,before saying:"I'm waiting to be impressed."-Sabih

JOSEF BEEBY

TEDDY BENSTEAD

Ever since I met Teddy many years ago, in grade five, one thing always stuck out in my mind: Teddy's recklessness. Teddy's always ready to take part in any potentially life-threatening sport that we manage to come up with. Whether it's the slide game of the elementary days or his recent stunts in Rugby, FU-Basketball and Extreme Sledding, Teddy is always willing to risk life and limb for the glory of his Celtic ancestors. However, Teddy's not just some dummy from the block. Teddy is smart, VERY smart. I often see him easily pulling off huge marks in chemistry while others struggle. This mixture of brain and brawn along with a dash of humor is the essence of Teddy. I'm sure that wherever Teddy decides to go and whatever he decides to do, he will succeed. Have a good one Teddy

When I think of the short time I've known Nick (a.k.a. Harry Potter, Sick Nick, The Bottomline or my personal favorite, Bawt Bawt), we've had a lot of good memories. When he first came to HGS in grade 10 (some people still think he came in grade 9) I, for the longest time, thought that he was a German exchange student. This theory was proven wrong when on Halloween he came dressed as 'Silent Bob' and we started talking about Kevin Smith movies. Now Nick is known for many things: always smiling, playing the air guitar whenever music is being played and totally zoning out and going into a state we call "vacant". Nick also has the tendency to know everything about music, which is why I consider him to be the unofficial "music geek" of HGS. I know Nick will succeed in whatever he decides to become: whether it's drawing portraits of classmates on Photoshop or writing songs and music for his hit band. Take care in the future and I'm sure IRC you later.

NICK BOTTOMLEY

CAROLINE BRETT

I first met Caroline in grade 9. Her sweet personality and gentle countenance attracted me to her and little did I know of the lasting impressions she would have on me. Caroline has never ceased to amaze me. Her amazing compassion for others is truly remarkable. She brings out the best in everybody around her and exhibits wisdom beyond her years. Caroline has taught me the true meaning of being a friend. She has been there for me through good times and bad and has never stopped supporting me. Over the years, there have been many laughs and many tears and I am blessed to have been able to share them all with my best friend Caroline. When I look back at the little girl with the golden hair and now at the beautiful, accomplished woman, I am privileged to call my best friend, I realize that I have found in Caroline my kindred spirit, my mentor, my sister and my soul-mate. Here's to our friendship and the many memories we have yet to create.

Ashley came into the world early and has been late for everything since. Poking her way through her mornings, spending way too long in the shower (doing we're not quite sure what) she arrives a little late for everything. Hailing from a place called Stellarton, the girl that's never fully clad without a smile, arrived at Grammar in grade nine, brightening our drab halls. Getting to know Ashmo, you quickly realize that though she may be small in size, she's big in heart and if you need a hug, she's never too far away. When Ashley's not talking, she's sleeping, which explains her many debating titles and her inability to stay awake during sleepover movie fests. A true geek at heart, Ashley aims for perfection and still believes that neatness is the key to just about everything. She manages to keep her cool, even in the hectic Grammar setting (although sometimes you will catch her twirling her hair when she becomes restless). As soon as school lets out on Friday, you can find Ashley on her cell phone making plans with the girls for the weekend (and if these plans involve driving somewhere, you'll have to fight her for front seat!) No matter how old she gets, Ashley will never part from her Dr. Seuss paraphernalia (a true kid at heart). No doubt she will achieve all she's dreamed of and more. Don't lose touch, Ash! The sky's the limit.

ASHLEY BURKE

GWEN CHAPMAN

You've been at the Grammar School for 13 years. (Books, horses, old ladies and vinegar bottles, black, the anti-Semi, the paper, the couches, pistachios, awkward silences, movie night, the pope, the door, rainbow toe socks, adventures, Thomas' car, poetry freak, the tree, the clown joke, Caspian, Hurricane Juan and confessions, paper cranes – but it's all okay, 'cause it's iambic pentameter).

Out of the murky Bangladeshi swamps emerged a creature, which made even the indigenous species cringe in fear. Due to his indefatigable lust for foodstuffs, a young Norwegian tourist couple took pity on him despite the fact they couldn't pronounce his name. His adoptive parents, appalled by his tendency to make ridiculously random noises shipped him off to Ireland, where he lived among potatoes. This unusual childhood shaped the man we now call Chinmoy. Like his youthful companions, Chinmoy is portly, tough, and, most noticeably, brown. It was not until his arrival in that unremarkable town of Halifax that his true genius was revealed. His numerous accomplishments after that date include being solely responsible for this rise in popularity of the Nova Scotian chicken burger, the amelioration of the complete works of Sublime, and, most importantly, his rise to the prestigious office of mastermind of mooching. Chinmoy currently resides in the South End of Halifax, along with the endless supply of multi-layered chicken sandwiches, assured of a full life yet to come.

WILLIAM COCHRAN

I met Will in grade 7 when I first came to this school, and since then he has been my best friend. Will is a determined, humble, intelligent, and easy-going person. For a friend he will do anything for getting hypothermia to ordering Chinese food. It progresses from black pieces vs. white pieces to San Antonio vs. Golden State, but in the end it's all a game of chess isn't it? Will is the type of person who can make "The Impossible" become very possible, and is bound to be successful regardless of what he decides to do in life. Throughout all of the six years that I have known him there have been too many memories to recall, and probably even more that I actually can't remember. Will and I have taken trips across the country, wrote our own Bible, been involved in numerous parallel relationships, and enjoyed analytical nights when we learned the true entertainment value of echos. With such an adventurous past behind him, I am confident that Will's future will be filled with incredible experiences, as his pleasant aura is felt and absorbed by those around him.

Keely came to Grammar School far too late, but has miraculously managed to achieve the status of "honorary lifer". We're still not quite sure what to make of her obsession with paper crane, LotR, and the Matrix, not to mention the strange company she keeps. She and her friends are a motley crew, but not generally found to be harmless, so long as the sanctity of their couches is maintained. All in all, it has been found that it is 'much funnier when people hit her with things.' "The Grammar Experience has been much like a ride in Thomas Harvey's car; it's loud and chaotic, and you're always expecting to crash and burn, but you know it might be the most fun you have all day, and, ultimately, you reach your destination in on piece." - Gwen and Keeley.

KEELEY COCHRANE

ANDREW CONROD

Drew came to us in grade three, and suffice to say, the halls of H.G.S. were never quiet again. Andrew has always made sure that his ideas are heard, whether we like them or not. Whether it's hearing his conversations from the other side of the school or moving in for a week after falling victim to trees, we always know he's there. Although he never was a big man, he has always had a big heart. Never letting his small stature (which he has since grown out of) get in his way. Andrew lives for sports. Whether it's basketball, sailing, or even rugby, Andrew always brought his A game, refusing to slack off. Where ever you go, and whatever you do, Andrew, we know you'll always be heard. We wish you luck! T.B.

Jenna is a self-proclaimed 'lifer' of the Grammar School, which she always declares with pride. There isn't a single person affiliated with HGS that she doesn't know in some way or another. This is typical of Jen. She can strike up a conversation with practically anyone, and could always be counted on to bring some much needed humor to the dry and seemingly endless days of the school week. To those who knew her best, she was a confidant. And those of us who were lucky enough to have her around when we needed someone to listen, never took her for granted (most of the time). During exam time, it was a known fact that Jenna would be the first person down by the gym doors, flipping through her notes (Just one example of her diligence and determination). Her tales of Camp Kadimah never seemed to end (God did they ever drag on) Nor did her supply of Dentyne Ice gum. Jenna taught me that you can't take yourself too seriously or you'll miss out on the simple pleasures of life. Your sanguine spirit will be missed by all. Best of luck in the years to come, Shorty. Whatever future you pursue we're sure you'll make it!

JENNA CONTER

ELIZABETH COOK

One day, someone truly amazing comes along and inspires you to be more than you ever thought possible. For me, this person was Liz Cook (a.k.a. Cooker) who first arrived at Grammar in grade 9. Liz is the most incredible person I've ever met. Her modesty and relaxed attitude screen her many qualities and accomplishments. Liz is tenacious athletic, jovial, resilient and of course caring. Her determination and hard work have earned her a spot on the Un 17 Canadian National Team, a gold medal at the Senior Women's Nationals and most likely, a future sports scholarship. She has a unique ability to rise to challenges and overcome obstacles while making it all look easy. Whether you need a shoulder to cry on or a friend to laugh with, Cooker is always there. Liz really shines when it comes to being a true friend. Her honesty helped me see my weaknesses and her support has helped me turn them into strengths. Anyone close to Liz will agree that just knowing her has made them better people. Liz, have confidence in your abilities because we all know that you're going to be great! C.G.

J.C, you may think you know him well, but best leave this to the ones that know him best. He came to this school just last year from anti-go-nowhere, where in his spare time he was usually found doing volunteer work. Such as Donating freshly picked apples to the less fortunate (we would call this the meals on wheels, 'literally.') He was always pointing out flaws in a school cafeteria system. He always does what he thinks is best ...gesh, he has hung from a building window by the tips of his fingers (and managed to get in) just to pick up some recycles. What a guy, but he doesn't function well on a empty stomach. If he doesn't ingest food within a 12-hour period, he can not be held responsible for his actions. J.C. has more endorphins then the energizer bunny, he will keep going and going. He is unstoppable! One last word. 'Pain is weakness leaving the body.'

JOHN CORBIT

LIZ CORKUM

Liz Blessed my life 4 years ago, when we discovered that we were destined to be 'bestest' friends, a match made in heaven. Maybe it was her wicked sense of humor(...and cake) or her thoughtful gestures (what other friend would wait for you on a park bench for three hours?), but something about her just made sense. She has developed into a brilliant, headstrong young woman that I can honestly say I trust. She has been with me through the good and the bad. I would not have made it through high school without her. She has shown me love equal to that which my mother gave me. I know you will be successful in life Liz, keeping in mind our great discoveries: Boys NEVER call, and, as brilliant as Grammar girls have learned "We play hard and we part harder".
-Caroline

Friday night at the movies and there's a long line up at the concession stands. I leave Mark to make a phone call and the next thing I hear is a gigantic crash. Turns out Mark went over to lean against (what he thought was) a wall but was in fact a freestanding ad pillar for, of all movies, Sleepy Hollow with a caption at the bottom that read: heads will roll. There's Mark, struggling to get up out of the crumpled destruction around him. He got up, took a bow, and the crowd erupted in laughter and applause. Fact of the matter is, Mark always makes a big impression wherever he goes. Although many know Mark to be charismatic, over the past six years I've also known him to be both talented and determined, as well as able to convince anyone of anything. I first knew Mark as the guy with the really high-pitched voice who wore really tight pants, but no matter where Mark is years from now, whether he is a doctor, famous actor, the next big white rapper, an NBA (Hangtime) all-star, or living down the street from me in some American suburb, he will continue to be the remarkable guy I know him to be. So just remember, some say goodbye (but we) say WAAZZZZZZZZAAAAAAA!!!! W.C.

WILL COCHRAN

TYLER DEACON

Deacon (a.k.a 'Tyler,' Deac, Deacon Ball) first walked into our lives in grade 9. This mysterious 'Islander' soon earned a reputation as a gentleman and a scholar, and won the heart of mothers everywhere. From his constant stupid remarks and juvenile days of grade 9 to his incessant joking and juvenile days of grade 12, he's kept us all laughing (whether it's with him or at him). However, underneath Deacon's immature, vacuous façade, and midget-fetish lay the efficient organizer of the first 'staff vs. students' hockey game and a sensitive young man struggling to break free. His appreciation of merry-making, ladies, hockey, snowboarding, the outdoors, and the friendship of others will no doubt keep him well-liked and happy forever. Actually, I was only friends with him to hang out with his Dad. - AL

"Heartfelt wishes as you pursue your dreams. May you do so with the same creativity and gusto that followed you through your years at the Grammar School." - Ms. Brenda Cochran

SIMON DELVA

Simon came to Grammar in grade 11, but in his relatively short time here he managed to leave quite a mark. Whether he was dancing down the halls listening to Justin Timberlake, or stealing all my Fruit-To-Gos, you had to love the guy. Despite this, I think Simon will be remembered most for his green Jetta. No matter who you were or where you lived, if you were stuck you could always count on Simon to let you hop in and get a ride. I have a feeling this guy is going places. Oh speaking of which, in a couple years, if you're ever in Italy, make sure you check out Simon's scooter shop. You're the man Deeds, see you in Italy!

Anthony's convictions make his adversity endearing. He is on his way to a bright future in sales.

ANTHONY FEDERICO

HUGH GOODDAY

Hugh Goodday, what is there to say? We lost his write up, so this is his new one. I knew the guy from school but I didn't know him much outside of school, although I still managed to gather enough information to deduce his mind was riddled with weird and perverted thoughts. Far too complex and obscure for any in human mind. Many speculated he had been the result of some military experiment. Whatever the case was, you could always pick him out in a crowd for his sheer height if not by his hallucination driven shrieks of madness. I would have been his friend had I not suspected he had a plot to kill me and destroy my entire operation.

Godspeed Hugh, godspeed.

-The Intrepid Nick

CALLEY GRAY

Calley first came to HGS in the same great year as I did, grade 9. Coming from Brookside Junior High, her experience with city life was lacking though she soon caught up with the latest lingo, (and learned who the Beatles were!!) Throughout her four years here, she's played influential roles on the soccer and JV basketball teams. She's a dedicated athlete and her positive attitude has always been an inspiration. Calley's a genius in the classroom and takes her studies very seriously, though she's always been willing to help me out, and has usually known just what to say after I haven't done so well, "if you switch the two digits its really an 84%!" Calley has always been a great supporter of me through thick and thin. She witnessed me during many of my finest moments, and my not so fine (stories which she has no problem telling and retelling!) Indubitably she has made the past 4 years of my life most enjoyable and I will certainly miss her company in the years to come. But it's not just me, Calley has managed to befriend much of the population of HGS (and amounted her share of stalkers—Sabih!—too), and if you ask anyone around, they'd all agree that she is an amazing individual! Good Luck at the RMC or where ever the rest of your life takes you! L.C.

Justin Hack is a very complex individual, and I think that we can all agree that he makes our school a much more interesting place. At one time or another, he has probably come close to making each and every one of us break down and shed tears of laughter. Whether we were getting some sushi at Maki Maki, sneaking out of English Comp. class (sorry Dr. Friesen), or literally fighting for a staring position on the soccer team, I always had a good time with Hack. I still can't figure out why so many of us, including myself, thought it would be a good idea to put our school's finances in his hands, but I'm sure that in the end we'll be glad we did. Always remember that you heard it here first, this kid is going places. So whether it is medical school, the burn unit at the hospital, or prison, this won't be the last we hear of Justin Hack.

I'm going to leave you with some words of advice for the years to come: Make sure your children stay as far away from Hack's as possible!

"Where ya at Hack??"

NICK HANSEN- MACDONALD

Thomas, what can I say about him? I knew him when he was only three inches tall (last year). The new model (model t - 2003) created a convincing and indecible impression on my mind. The old Thomas with his incessant cursing annoyed the devil; he also threw rocks at the windows of the bussiness establishments on downtown Spring Garden Rd. The old Thomas ethumerd graves so that he could snatch jewelry from the corpses (nice guy).

Basically speaking, Thomas was not much different than your typical teenager. Oh! yeah, another trivial detail I almost forgot to add to Thomas' already impressive credentials, consists of the fact that he hung cats on clothes lines. Heck, I mean basically Thomas was a decent character. He never shot anyone on a Sunday (blows me away). He was an incredibly holy guy. Thomas snatched purses from little old ladies; he stole meat from Sobey's (I don't blame him). Thomas considered himself succesfully employed (he was until he was caught in the act by the local authorities). Anyway, he informs me of the fact that he is currently securing his sentence by attending high school. Keep up the good work Thomas; your future looks promising.

Yours truly, Street Vendor -Jack

THOMAS HARVEY

REED HOLLET

Texas took HGS by storm in Grade 9, creating a cyclone with his accomplishments in Track, Soccer, and in Basketball where he traveled far and wide across the court. Reed's sports skills made our jaws drop...well, actually it was because we were trying to cram more of his delicious coffee cake into our mouths. In fact, Reed's incredible culinary expertise saved him money on our Keji trip, as he didn't need an alarm for himself. Every morning, Reed heard the soothing call of "Reeeeeed...Let's get these pancakes crack-a-lackin." I believe that Reed can be compared with his 'fro.' During their time at HGS, they have both grown in size and maturity, and are well known and well loved by all of the school. You'd think that a hybrid of Emeril Lagasse and Totti, with a passion for the outdoors, would have very little free time. But the Texan Sensation has put aside an incredibly generous portion of his time to be one of the warmest, kindest, and truest friends that I have ever known. With these skills present, there is no doubt that Reed will excel as a student, a professional, and most importantly, as a person. Thank you Reed! J.M.

ROSS JACOBS

Ross joined HGS in grade 9, and his world was forever turned up side down. Ross Jacobs can best be described as a "serious student with an athletic problem!" or is it "a serious athlete with an academic bias"? Which ever it is, Ross's greatest attributes and the ones I am most proud of, are his spirit and his heart. Ross is a young man with a big heart, something he tries to cover up and hide with false bravado, but is there nonetheless. He has grown up in a complex and confusing world, where the lines between right and wrong are often blurred and pressures from family, peers and his generation all pull in diverse and contradictory directions. As in his sports, Ross has faced and overcome these challenges, never losing his spirit, love and determination and his only guidance has been his family and his own heart. When Ross wants something badly enough he has the ability, drive and single mindedness to achieve anything and he does this through a relaxed, laidback and at times stylishly cool approach.

Whatever Ross ends up doing in life, three things I know will be true. Firstly he will be successful, secondly, his family will be as proud of him in the years to come as they have been in the years gone by and thirdly, whatever the future holds, Ross's greatest success is his love, his spirit and his heart.

Avinash Jay, no matter which of his numerous incarnations he is in, whether it's the brash "Cocky Asian," the ruthless mafia boss "Don Avi." The canonical and bombastic "Jim Shapiro" or, as he was known in Kingston, simply "Avi", can be trusted to stay slightly below the law, but out of harm's way. An unrelenting greed for the good things in life has assured Avi a place in our hearts, and our wallets. - Daniel King.

One thing's for sure, Avi will be missed. An integral member of the Asian Invasion, he has stood out of the crowd in so many ways. Avi's movie star looks and easy going nature have endeared him to so many. But Avi's not just a pretty face; being a frequent victim of his razor wit, I can speak first hand of his quick thinking. Good luck, Avi, though you probably won't need it.

ELIZABETH JOHNSON

Elizabeth Johnson (aka Liz, Jiz, Jizabeth)

After a shy beginning at Grammar School in grade 7 and being late for her first class (oh the horror!), Liz managed to climb her way up the social ladder to finally claim the position of Head Girl. Lizzie-Poo, as she is occasionally called, never ceases to enjoy herself. Whether it's ferociously charging at soccer opponents, warming the bench (!), trapeezing on the high seas as crew on "Hummmmer", or making a mean vegan cake and soy milk, Liz excels at whatever she devotes herself to. Liz's morals changed for the better after attending the mysterious summer hippie camp PSYL and she now proudly displays her tree-hugger status. Liz's friendliness is probably the reason why she has won all of our hearts. She can be seen spending time with the infamous Squad or her ever-loving WS or even, on occasion Mr. Boyle, discussing the pros and cons of HL (dork) Math. If Liz does not become a successful MD, I know she will end up following her heart in some other direction. Be it an environmental activist, or an opera singer (I am lucky enough to already have seen her debut). I know I for one will follow Liz's future, knowing with certainty that she will succeed. Rock on Liz! I'll miss you. Love Rel.

Laura took her first steps into HGS in grade seven, and grew like a weed to fill her shoes as a natural leader on both the soccer field and the basketball court where she can be found pulling some crazy stunt of simply re-doing her hair. LJ's energetic nature keeps everyone's head spinning as she accomplishes more in a day than most people can achieve in a week. Laura found her match in the friendly 'fro' of our class late last year, and we all sat down with a sigh of relief knowing her kayaking, canoeing, and hiking excursions would soak up some of her daily energy allowance. We're quickly running out of time to solve the mystery as to why LJ wears a watch, all it tends to do is fluster her. She's usually running a bit behind schedule and when she's not, she's running quite far behind. But all who know her overlook this. We're all well aware of the fact that she's off attempting to complete the endless list of errands she's promised to do for everyone but herself. She always finishes them all, no matter the sacrifice she has to make. LJ's willingness to help anyone is only one of the reasons she has become one of my closest friends. She has a knack for solving any problem great or small, and she's the mom of the group. She makes sure none of us stray too far and you can always count on LJ to have a plan, and a back up plan and a plan in case the others all fail. LJ never ceases to amaze me. Never lose touch LJ, the road to a friends is never long. AB

LAURA JOHNSTONE

DANIEL KING

The girls find him cute and the guys find him a menace. With a deep, manly voice and a warm but absolutely crazy personality, rest assured that good times are sure to come whenever Daniel does. —Kent

The pointless arguments between Daniel and I have accomplished nothing, apart from giving me the realization that this is not just a man of strong opinions, but of morals and of great friendship. I know you will be successful at whatever you do. —Ryan

We can all come to the conclusion that Daniel's mastery of the English language as well as his razor wit have made him a great friend and endeared him to us all. —Chinmoy

I've never got along so well with someone who holds such different views from me; but this is a testament to Daniel's generosity, chivalry and easy-going sense of humour. Despite his right-wing and fascist tendencies, I still maintain that Daniel is a closet communist. Thanks for the memories, comrade. —Allanah

"She's immature. Narcissistic. Paranoid. Maybe that might sound negative, but these are the qualities that make her such a wonderful person. We got two years, and that was at least two years too few. However, in that short span of time, Lael managed to change more lives than I think she ever intended or wanted to. What she might not realize is that the change was always positive.

What did she contribute to the school? 5 card Mao, perhaps. A few more gray hairs for some teachers, and some dents in the floors from a pogo stick. But to each and every one of us individually, she gave a lot more. Whether or not they know her name, everyone in grade 12 will leave with fond memories of her. And for those of us who knew her better, the memories will be all the fonder. She showed me exactly how many wonderful memories you can produce in such a short time. Sports awards cheesecake. Bowling. The Lake. Crystal Crescent. Cookies at 3AM. Just to name a few. I'd say I wish I could have those memories back, but I'm far too busy looking forward to a future of new ones. I'd say goodbye, but I'd much rather just say see you soon.

LAEL KRONICK

JAMIE LANGILL

Whether it be for his killer smile, ability to always point out the optimistic point of view, or his not-so-near mint condition '93 Volvo, everyone seems to enjoy Jamie's presence. Always up for a good time, but not willing to sacrifice his education, it is difficult to think of an occasion when Jamie was out on a school night, and not too hard to find a Friday night he 'chose' not to come out, and instead wrote an English paper. J, as he is called by some, (ironically not because of his first initial), appreciates his 'alone time' more than most, which may be what allows him to remain so down-to-earth. A few of the many things I will never forget about this unique young man: first and foremost his extreme, sometimes tedious love for Our Lady Peace, his obsession with watching more TV news programs in two hours than most teenagers ever do, "do you have an airmiles card" at the most random, but perfect times, and his frequent French and/or German outbursts. Whatever path this well-rounded, open-minded, energetic individual chooses to take, I, as well as everyone who knows him well, recognizes that in any situation, except for changing a flat tire, he is sure to be successful.

Allanah (pronounced Il-aw-naw unless you want to get ridiculed by her family) graced HGS with her presence in grade 7 after bidding the public school Ecole Beaufort a fond farewell. Things at HGS changed considerably after her appearance: no one else could ever claim the title of Top Student again. Allanah's class, over-compassion, and sensibility (and being able to recite PI to the tenth digit in any, and I mean ANY situation) could take Allanah anywhere she wants. However, she is the only person who, when supposed to be studying, can end up discussing which characters in The Iliad are the hottest, in terms of who would be the best one night stand, life partner or trophy husband etc. In her bright future, I have no doubts that Allanah will discover a cure for cancer, win the Nobel Peace Prize, be a sexy woman in a pin-stripe business suit, take Broadway by storm, write an episode of The Simpsons (face it, she can quote them all already) and run a successful communist state. Don't be surprised if you read a review of her CD in a couple years and she's rumoured to be the next Joni Mitchell. Keep it real Allanah, real pylon. Love, a certain sorel-nag

JUSTIN MAGNUS

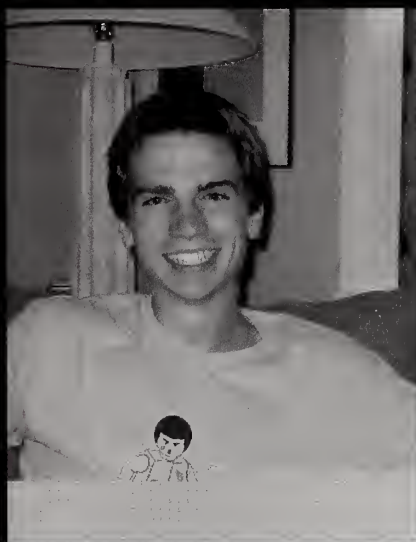

There are some human beings that are vague, unsure of themselves, and unaware of their purpose in life. Justin Magnus is not one of those people. In Grade Eight, we were introduced to a seemingly shy, reserved and friendly giant. Four years later, we became acquainted with a more genuine version of the proud product of Bedford. A dominant force on the basketball court, and in conversation, Justin's ability to be heard from, physically or verbally, is unparalleled. More than anything, it is magnanimous Magnus' lack of political correctness that has bonded him to many of his classmates, and given him a celebrated reputation. Time and time again, Justin has proven his frankness; whether it's his unequivocal hatred of the French language, or his displeasure with the results of a card game in the lounge. Justin's pure aggressiveness, opportunistic nature and supreme confidence will ensure that he'll never miss a chance to not only succeed, but to annihilate the competition.

"The end justifies the means." -Machiavelli

This fly feline entered the HGS premises with tons of energy and relief of putting her kilt-wearing all-girls days behind her [and also having escaped a certain SB] Sarah remains among the finest of the Sacred Heart alumnae. In her early Grammar days, she was quick to abandon her good-girl image and let the corruption begin. Grade 10 started off with a bang when she was a key player on an unstoppable ACIS champion doubles tennis team. The showering affection of a certain Thomas Harvey made for quite the year, but Sarah was smitten on some other studs on the side. After throwing a New Years shindig to go down in history, she never really heard the end of people awaiting an encore. A longtime gym-rat, Sarah rocked the gymnastics world with no mercy. She occasionally found time away from the gym to set out on adventures in her blue machine, be the life of every fondou party, go scavenging, and make some risqu  house calls. After retiring on top, and in search of another sport to rock, Sarah became a baller. She has always been iso so so  much fun, and is a true veteran. Sarah Ann McInnes' future is certainly looking to be a bright one. Keep the good times rolling!

SARAH MCINNES

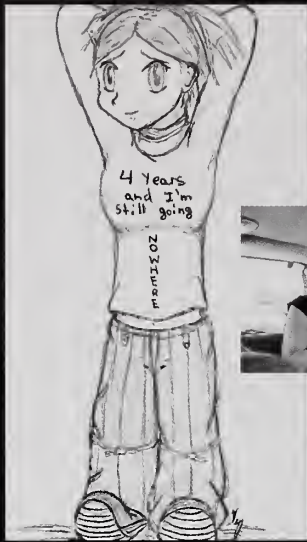

JOHN MCKENNA

John appeared on the doorstep of HGS in grade nine, orange bag in hand, waiting for his moment to capture our attention. This moment came when he decided to roll down the stairs in some sort of protest against biology class. Few choose such a bold first statement but John aims to impress. And he manages to do so with everything he does. John's life is a whirlwind of school, tennis, debating and student council. Most would be uneasy in trusting someone with so much on their plate, but John never gives up and he finishes everything he tackles without breaking a sweat. If you ever need him for anything, just listen for him, he's sure to be nearby and more than willing to help. John has a knack for capturing an audience; whether he's rambling about HL math, stopped in the hall to test his skills at recounting economics definitions, or simply chatting in the lounge, if you can hear him, chances are you'll listen to the story, and erupt in laughter before long. John's path is destined for greatness; we're all eager to see where he'll end up. Everyone who knows John is honored to call him a friend; he's left a mark on all of us. It's been a privilege; don't let anything stand in your way. A

Oh, Heather Mee. Heather's always there for you, even when you don't want her to be. While we don't know what she does in her spare time exactly (though there are a few guesses, none being appropriate) its obviously doing her some good as she slaves through her work and classes with unmatched, mild enthusiasm, gaining her almost top grades. Often seen cruising along in her hub-cap-less car, Heather's been known to be seen at all the hot spots (ie Value Village, the SC office, Hollis St. on weekend evenings), keeping up with the demands of high popularity. Whatever she strives to become we know Heather will no doubt make it there. You were worth the 18 years of hell, torture and a sister's gift of love, Heath. Since the womb you were always a fighter, and I, like you, always say "warriors don't give up." They couldn't bring you down at Keji, and you won't be brought down in life. You're talented, smart and above all you carry the drop-dead gorgeous look of the Mees. They say that twins traits are split between them, and you got the good ones. You'll make it far and you've got more people rooting for you!

HEATHER MEE

insert drool here as I called her when we first met, at nine months of age in our mother's womb. How I've watched with joy as you grew and matured, through glasses and retainers, training bras and ugly matching clothing, and a room we shared where I'd sleep on your bed if I thought there were monsters near mine. You were always brave and in my face, but I knew you for better than that - I had even seen you in the bath, when we were babies. Anyway, I want to say that it's easy to see why you gain stalkers from across the world, why everyone is drawn to your wit and charm and your devilish goodlooks (it must be a family thing). You may not know it but as long as I live you'll always have my support, and I know you're going to soar because I learned from you how to be a fighter. A life without Vicky Mee is like a chibi with small eyes and long legs - it's just not any good. To my Keji champ, my hackey sack pro (oh Boston), crazy tree saver, I'll make the soup and you make the snadwiches and we'll be partners forever. H.M.

We've known this girl for four years now, we were both on our way to room 202 to meet the other new arrivals when I met Rekha. We quickly joined forces to discover the one- sock mystery and soon became first day buddies, locker buddies and music buddies. Rekha was the innocent one of the group at first, but we soon changed that. We corrupted her, but we also managed to teach her about the simple things in life. (They do have straws at the movie theatre!) Rekha can always be found tucked away at lunchtime where the flock of us will eventually gather. She'll listen to anyone no matter the context of their rant, and she'll always bring a smile to your face when she cheers you up with a good old Rekha joke. After tackling the catapult project of grade nine, Rekha, we're all expecting great things from you, and we all know we'll still be amazed with what you accomplish. Rekha's ingenious comments and green apple slices will be sorely missed in the halls of HGS. Find your weakness; beat it. Find you anthem; sing it. And Rekha- reach for the stars!

REKHA MISHRA

JOHN MITTON

Brazen, incisive, and as cutting as ever, Mitton is back with his brand new rendition of the obsolete venacular. Behind Mitton's complex personality lurks a trenchant humorist with a sharp moral sensibility. His exaggerated style may defy easy categorization, mostly because his voice is sui generis, and his originality paramount for disillusioned members of the quasi-evanescent Generation X. His style can be described as if he's careening down a mountain highway at 110km/h, steering with his knees. Truly, there is only one John Mitton: an incorrigible, doom-haunted observer whose dazzling wit and outlaw persona have made a distinctive mark on most of the South End.

"My prejudice is pretty general. Far too broad and sweeping for any racial limitations. It's clear to me - and has been since the age of 10 or so - that most people are jerks and theives."

Jill arrived on the Grammar scene in grade seven, and wanted out ever since, or so she announced annually. We all knew she was tough enough to stick it out, and she certainly proved us right. Everyone knows Jill by a different name. Whether she is known as Bert, Jiles, Munro, PJ, JP, or just plain Jill, we all know the same sweet girl that we've grown to love, and who blows us away with her never-ending love, devotion and friendship. If you need a shoulder to cry on, a friend to laugh with, or a buddy to complain to, Jill will always make time for you. She truly excels when it comes to being an honest friend; extremely trustworthy and easy to talk to. She manages to balance the relaxed, easy going guitar playing attitude with the traditional high stressed, rushed lifestyle of a Grammar student, to achieve a personality that shines. There is no doubt in our minds that she will be successful at whatever goal she sets for herself. Whatever your heart desires, Jill, we will be waiting to see you surpass your expectations of yourself. You're more than you know; you're priceless. We all love you!

JILL MUNRO

MATTHEW MURPHY

Matt escaped the public school system and began his HGS career in Grade 7. Matt and I have been great friends since I came to the Grammar School in Grade 9. This was probably because we had a lot of the same interests: Basketball, Commercial Rap, and Academics (remember, this is HGS). Three years have passed and little has changed: we still erupt into laughter at the thought of "Ridin' Spinners". Through his love of sports, Matt has learned a new appreciation for dedication, hard work, and road-trips in the snow with Mr. Rodney. Basketball, Golf, Soccer, Rugby, there is nary a sport that Matt hasn't tried and excelled at. Well, there was that brief career that we had as a badminton doubles team (you can't always kill the shuttlecock Matt!) With Matt's academic and extra-curricular activities, the world is pretty much his oyster. Although I don't seem to think his career will involve dancing, Matt, enjoy your future, and I'm sure our paths will cross again. J.M.

This sassy German chick never ate a pb&j or poutine until she met me, oh how her life would change. She was soon down with the english lingo and soon picked up all the vulgar expressions. But this was not a one-way lesson. I was introduced to nutella sandwiches (where have these been my whole life?) and expressions like "scheisse" and "du bist blau". But this girl was far from a bad influence on me. You would think that coming into Grammar with English as a second language would mean that the work would be twice as hard for her. Well Steffi wasn't forced into English Comp as I was and right from the get-go she was murdering my english marks. Now that puts a dent on the self-esteem. No hard feelings though, this girl is a hard worker. School work is not where her talents end though, Steffi, can be found riding her pony or cruisin around blastin the newest 50 cent song or talking on her celly in a language none of us understand. You can always count on Steffi for a good laugh, and can always count on her to tell you the truth, no matter how harsh it may be.. A.M..

AMANDA NORTHCOTT

This gracious Gryphon / ex-Kingfisher can be seen ripping it up on the basketball court or cruising the streets in her black beauty. She left the mean streets of Sackville after 11 years of school, but still manages to stick around on the weekends! Amanda is rarely seen without a smile on her face that spreads to everyone she meets. Now representing Sack-town at Grammar, her contagious laugh along with her irresistible curly hair are unmistakable traits Amanda is famous for. Although she had to make many sacrifices leaving Sackville High, she has made many new great friends, including her partner in crime Brianna Orr. She has learned countless new things, including the proper way to say, 'I saw' instead of 'I seen.' While tackling hours of homework, Amanda still manages to find time to perfect her B-ball skills. She hopes to go far from home for university and play on the varsity team wherever she ends up. In her spare time, you'll find her hitting up the beaches and surfing the waves. In the future, you'll find this promising chick enlightening the minds of children. Good luck, Amanda, though you definitely don't need it.

"Learn from yesterday, live for today, hope for tomorrow."

This crazy, energetic Gryphon can be seen running game on her opponents, hanging with her CPA girls on the streets of B-Dot, or with her very cute boyfriend, Chad. Brianna a.k.a. Bri is all-smiles and is best known for her cuddly ways, her hysterical laugh and her tendencies to be late, unorganized and usually unshowered. This chick is always willing to lend a hand and is an awesome friend to all. Though her life is extremely busy and very stressful, she always finds time for her friends, whether it be an encouraging talk after a bad practice or a failing grade, or just being there to make you laugh. She is an inspiration to many, not only on the court but off. Brianna, taking nothing for granted, works hard for everything she earns. She is a true Grammar Queen: she manages to pull off high grades while keeping her skills perfected, her social life intact and her relationship with her family strong. In the future Bri will be known as a successful sport psychologist probably working in the NBA. But for now, she will represent the East Coast on the basketball court out west. We'll miss you Bri; the sky's the limit...

BRIANNA ORR

KATIE RADCHUCK

First things first, BOB ISNT IN THE MOB. Thirteen years ago, it all began right here. Now that you're ready to extend your reach and embark upon new endeavors, you'll be putting everything you were busy doing while others were studying, to the test. Checking that Sarah and Stef made sure you could get through the playground; that Mr. Laffoly gave you a reason to greet everyone with a smile and Mrs. Meinertzagn showed you that life isn't too serious. We all knew in grade 6 that Katie stood tall among friends, even if she doesn't physically anymore. She never wasted time with excess drama, but saw things as they were and nothing more. It is said "a good leader makes more leaders, not followers", Katie always inspired the best in those around her. Although she is widely known for her soccer abilities, I think we'll see other big things from her. Many underestimate her, but when she finds something, not even broken bones will stop her. She kept many going through tough times and even when her life was chaotic, she always made time. This girl stayed strong when most would crumble(maybe this explains her boyfriends). Remember - hit&run, Robyn's pants, island parties, Boston, HB, Horton game with Irene, Mexico. For as long as I've known you, I've been blessed with an angel at my side to guide me. I can't even begin to think how much I'm going to miss you. You can't stay away too long, the East Coast isn't going anywhere.

"Best Wishes!" - Ben and Robert Mayhew

Graham graced the hallways four years ago with his manly good looks and mature humor, touching everyone, and we'll never be the same. Graham quickly learned how to get the most out of the school, including any seat in the grade nine lounge. While Graham's closest friends can be found in the hills of Bedford, he always got along with everyone at HGS. On any given day Graham could be found studying with friends in the library, playing cards in the lounge, ballin' out back with the boys, or jammin' to country tunes in his car. Graham has worked various part-time jobs and even with all this he is the most dependable person around. He always finds time, even if it means driving to the pubs to pick you up from a party. In many ways Graham is like a teddy bear; well insulated and very caring. You can always count on him to notice the little things. Graham has always been a little different from the mainstream Grammar style, this can be credited to his close friend and roommate, D'imitri. Graham style has flipped from punk to gangsta over the years, maybe being bought Burberry for services is next. Graham has always been able to keep a level head through the pressures of HGS, this most likely due to the open relationship between him and his parents. Graham is looking to head out West next year, but it'll be tough for him to leave the most important woman in his life behind, his mother. We're all sure he'll do wonders though, good luck with it all g-unit. Luff ya , #1

GRAHAM RICHARDSON

ELIZABETH RUSSELL

Elizabeth Hawkins Russell came to Grammar from Fairview, and spent her grade 9 year keeping her good-girl image intact...but it was only a matter of time until she was corrupted. In her early high school years, she established herself as quite the gold-digger. A real superstar, she excelled in volleyball, soccer, badminton, and basketball - costing the JV team line drill after line drill and being yelled at by some rowdy CPA parents. Her rebellious side shone through in Quebec, where she challenged authority, somehow managed to keep warm on a cold walk and worked her old man charm. When not partaking in car chases, late night streaker- witnessing excursions, or hydrating herself in randomly risqué places, Liz would usually be board walking or on classy middle-age style outings. Her integrity was defined by a wild horseback ride, but in any event, she wears her heart on her sleeve. Liz undoubtedly has an interesting future ahead of her.

Jessica flew into the halls of HGS in grade 11, and we quickly became aware of the fact that she was confident, forward, and ready to tackle anything. She was ready to attack HGS and strive to make her way from our small halls to the great halls of Oxford without disrupting her social calendar at all. In all the time I've known her, she never settled down, as she lives from one coffee break to the next, resting only to attend the occasional get together and "Dance Friday." Jessica's life is a whirlwind of preparing to head off to Europe, finishing the endless pile of HGS assignments, and joining as many charity groups and extra curricular activities as one can fit on a resume. Jessica still manages to finish everything on time, sometimes in a mad fury, but this does not fluster her at all. She can always make time for any friend who needs a shoulder to lean on. Jessica would literally give you the shirt off her back; she's one of the most generous people I've ever met. Her honesty is one of her strongest qualities; she never fails to be completely honest with the people around her and with herself. Her self-confidence will take her wherever she wishes to go and her sincere nature will always gain respect from those around her. Jessica can be best described in the words of Winston Churchill "I am easily staisfied with the best." -AB-

JESSICA SCORPIO

A rock pile ceases to be a rock pile the moment a single man contemplates it, bearing with him the image of a cathedral. —Antoine de Saint-Exupéry

Adel:

You came to us on the wings of a Godlen Eagle
 Yet they questioned whether your immigration was legal
 When you impart your pearls of wisdom to us, sometimes we're bashful
 But you bought us cards and chess, and for that we are thankful
 Whether its prowling the annals of physics or math
 If some crosses you, he'll feel your wrath
 Even though you've come from a far away land
 The time we've spent with you has been grand.

ADEL SEIF-EL-NASR

Usually referred to as simply "Sheridan," this prodigy has been wandering the halls of Grammar since the tender age of five. Known back then for his rat-tail, a penchant for water fights, his mum's legendary cookies ("without a doubt, he had the best lunches"-DK), and a one-time attempt to strangle Katie Radchuck (just ask her!), he has developed into an animated, charming, refined, Led Zeppelin lovin' young man, and my favorite person in the universe. His extraordinary contributions on the soccer pitch (where his reputation caused his opponents to either timidly give him a 3 meter radius or viciously try to take out his knees) will be sorely missed, as will his invauluable contributions to basketball, track, and TOK discussions, and of course his extraordinarily successful academic presence at HGS. Above all the halls, I will miss his contagious smile, vivid hand gestures, and daily 5-shirt layering system. Will has more potential than a 2-ton projectile at the top of its trajectory ($PE=mgh$), and when he steps out of high school, he will have the "real world" wrapped around his finger. Such a deadly combination of charisma, ambition, and all-encompassing talent will undoubtedly take him wherever his heart desires. Good luck WILLiam, ich habe dich lieb.

WILLIAM SHERIDAN

VISHAL SHUKLA

Vishal- adj. (Vee-shawl). Being or pertaining to creepy.

Vishal came to us at Grammar after a brief stint at Sacred Heart...this gave him a head start on lady skills. However, when it came down to it, Vishal was the man of many talents: Running smal illegal businesses, wowing tenners with his computer abilities, mad-skills in the kitchen, and the best damn three-point turns YD will ever see. Also, his true brilliance in Physics class showed that one day he would become a "physician". He was the front man for Group 4 (more aptly titled the "Count Shukula Experience") and bringing down the hammer of the gods on drums (earning him the moniker "Bam-Bam"). His quick wit, luck with cards, pen spinning and overall charisma will be missed by all - many teachers included, I'm sure. A true Renaissance man, he was reliable, nimble, willing to help, and always had good music in his car. Best of luck in the future, man. It's been a privilege.

Katie Sorrell (aka Sorel, 'Rel?', Spinelli):

Known equally for her charm, wit, and "love" of the establishment, Katie has made her presence felt at HGS, since she came from Ecole Beaufort in grade 7, wearing her liberal views, bitterness, and emotions on the sleeve of the non-regulation shirts that hang from her curvaceous bod. Her ability to unabashedly poke fun at herself (and others), her brutal honesty, frequent sarcastic remarks, and constant Simpsons references have kept me continuously amused. Whether proudly displaying her socialism at NDP parties, being accused of having loose morals by Bostonian pilgrims, or singing along with her guitar at Coffee Houses, Katie can adapt to every situation with class. Despite her apparent cynicism and self-assuredness, Sorel is one of the most insightful, compassionate, and haplessly romantic people I know. In fact, she has had a love affair with more people than fit on a page, and from at least 4 different countries. I really don't know where Katie will end up, but whether wearing nothing but a guitar on the cover of Rolling Stone, the centrefolds of Playboy, or the CIA's most wanted list, I'm certain she will keep it rockin'. - AL

"I have come to the conclusion that all people are fickle... no, wait a minute!!" -Katie, proving her point as usual

"REL?" -Nick H-M

There's no use dwelling on what might have been/ Just think of all the fun you could be having/ Take a look around/ The candles on the cake/ On what might have been/ Mistakes mistaken/ Find yourself a moment/And go and get some wings -Radiohead

KATIE SORRELL

OLIVIER STOFFYN

By the end of this year I will have spent 13 years at grammar. The result of this is that I will have spent 197 days in a car driving back and forth. Of course this staggering number may have something to do with the fact that I live somewhere in the boon docks of the Eastern Shore. I am fluent in French but what is that going to do for me when half my neighbors don't talk good English anyway? However, at school, my French has helped me as well as many fellow students.

The biggest decision in my life so far was whether I wanted a tree house or chickens. I ended up choosing the chickens. This decision resulted in getting me the reputation of a farmer and led to the nickname hillbillier (damn you Dave Stewart). I could have been considered best known for keeping chickens, but instead I am now considered an axe murderer, hmm how strange?

My years at Grammar have been enjoyable (bearable at best) because of the multitude of friends that I have made. Its going to be very hard to leave at the end of the year.

"Oh yeah, that's right Teddy, every morning I take my .22, shoot a pig, and eat the whole damn thing."

- Olivier Stoffyn

I first met the guy at Tim Peltzer and Mats Junek's Magic cards club back in some obscure grade. I knew the second I saw we had matching Tabs of LSD hidden in our manna that we were made for each other, or so I thought. One morning I woke up only to find a note saying he had left me for a young quick start named Andrew Conrod. Next to that was a manna, left untapped.

CHRISTIAN STRINGER

ERIC TAYLOR

Eric Taylor:

Way back in grade five, the first time I met you, you had a Nintendo Power magazine in your hand. I asked you if I could see it, but to my dismay you said no. It was the Ken Griffey Junior issue. Anyway, the point is, you had enough sense back then not to lend your magazine to a stranger, and it's good that you still have that sense. In fact, you're probably the most sensible person ever. If you think this is too sappy. Stop whining! Or if you think this isn't enough... You lack discipline! Now resuming, if you keep up with the sensibility, maybe you'll be a Rock Star. The BEST! Speaking of the best(!) With every the best(!), there is a the worst(!) Well I bet if you went to a public school and weren't brainwashed by bionic gorillas..haha no what am I thinking, I love the good old Grammar School. Well, keep on rocking in the free world, my comrade in the quest to musical perfection, for one of these days we'll be rock gods... I hope.

A.W. + J.L.

"Han Solo is so much cooler than Indiana Jones"

What can I say....Jon was an all around good guy. Between sailing waves at the bay to shot gunning, Jonny always represented. People know him for his charisma and ruggedness. Though there are some haters, Jonny holds it down for the South End. Whether playin tough D on the field or shooting people down in the lounge, Jon is truly one of a kind and will be remembered no matter where he ends up. His presence was felt from the very beginning in grade seven and his character will continue to impress young girls until he is old. Giver Jon.

JONATHAN UNDERWOOD

LESLEY VAIR

Lesley Vair:

Lesley began her education at Sacred Heart; she was a favorite of the nuns and Ms. McGuire (who had a moustache). Lesley's almost too nice; for people who think she's most likely to be raped, it's not true- she'd be most likely to ask the rapist to please not touch her. She's the best person to look for a summer job with; she'll leave her resume even if they blatantly don't want it. Lesley looks petite, but with those arms, she can swim 6K a night. She was the star member of the tennis team at ACIS. Her wardrobe's the envy of every girl in school and she'll always lend. This year at Keji, her true inner woodsman was revealed...or not. Everyone, ask for her cell#, she loves getting calls! She can't drive yet, but she knows her spot in the car- back, left- and will be a speed demon. Lesley, we are veterans! S.M.

We, at Grammar, have had the privilege of numbly pleasant mental discomfort. Physical pain was infrequent, aside from occasional sleep deprivation, which we willed upon ourselves. Lives of running water, electricity, and not enough camping trips. We have manipulated, and "enhanced" our bodies, and called on chemicals to stimulate our senses, ignorant of consequences. We have even manipulated our minds and passively allowed their manipulation by a million sources of questionable morality. We live a distorted existence, in mind and practice. Arbitrary pursuits, TV and gossip enslave us from childhood into the monotone of human existence as we prevent our own progress. Will we live exactly as we're supposed, succumb to human nature, regress into hardened and degenerate alcoholism? Will we become dependant on more than we should, and tug aimlessly at the loose strings of society? Disentangle yourself, and you might see how very uncomplicated a lone physics problem is! From there, you might have a fighting chance against the aliens. When they descend to round us up, we will be the agents of our own demise. Inefficiency and a dangerous dependence on comfort will ensure a swift harvest.

13 Lessons Learned during 13 Years at HGS

1. We are all tone deaf little weasels.
2. It's better to miss 2 months of school in Grade 2 than 2 hours in Grade 12.
3. Kit Kat bars melt when you least expect them to.
4. There really is quite a bit to know about Louisbourg.
5. It's not hard to spell "mellifluous" after practicing for 4 years.
6. Question Period is boring. Just ask Mr. Wiggin.
7. Applesauce makes for poor locker décor.
8. SHOUTING IS BAD FOR YOUR LUNGS.
9. Eating an entire box of Oreos on the train to Quebec will cause an upset stomach.
10. Winning isn't everything, especially when it comes to the
11. Nothing exists (Thanks Mr. Marchand).
12. Sleeping is a privilege, not a right.
13. 13 years at HGS isn't so bad. (Did you really buy that?).

Ahh, Matt Wu. What other name brings images of flames so readily to my mind. This guy loves his pyrotechnics. Whether it's setting off firecrackers in a pot or creating burning matchstick houses in his room, Wu takes great enjoyment in his work. But in the two years that I've known him, he's made Quite an impression on me. Never one to miss out on a comment about his Chinese heritage, Wu is a proud member of the Asian Invasion. Matt's sense of humor and his inability to let go of even the most insignificant insults always result in humorous events. But seriously, Matt is a great person who I'm glad I had the pleasure of meeting. Good luck in all of your future endeavours Matt, I know you'll succeed.

DARA YOUNG

The Notorious Dara Young switched over from Armbrae academy and has stuck it out at grammar since grade 9. Couldn't have done those end years without Mr. Boyle, or her Dad for keeping this wild thing in line while old people try to fight her. She's just jealous you can play ball and she can't even coach. Dara's not fat but she's got tight rolls and she always manages to stay high when situations get rough. This girls no trick, she's the reason you want to come back for high school reunions. She could turn out anyway, a cop, a journalist, a NBA not WNBA player, or possibly even married by 19, the possibilities are endless. (i'll email you this name thatg goes here later.) is the heart of Buddhism but to me she's been the heart of this school and what's made grammars spacious halls worth the last 4 years. I don't know how to say this in a more refined manner but if you didn't get to know Dara, you missed out. Good luck Dara and above all have fun! K.R.

WE LEARNED

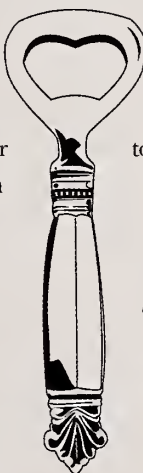

FROM BRUCE WILLIS

Bruce Willis has taught us a lot. He taught us that one man can triumph even when up against a team of armed, well-spoken Eastern European terrorists. He taught us that in Hollywood even storybook marriages are doomed to fail. But most importantly, when he strayed from action movies and even released a music CD, he taught us that you should always stick with what you know best—and not try to be everything to everyone.

Jack of all trades, master of none

You've heard it said before, and it's true. That's why at Page & Wood we focus on what we've been respected for across Atlantic Canada for over fifteen years—our skill in advertising and design. We have never been derailed by the lure of a research dept; not once have we wandered off into the land of PR; and we've never been tempted to install an in-house edit suite. Instead, when we need these services we partner with the best in the region.

*The bottle opener—
it has a single purpose,
and nothing works better.*

The value of focusing on what you do best

By being completely singular minded at all times we've been able to direct our energy and resources to doing the best advertising and design possible for our clients. And we're proud to say that our work ranks as some of the best—not just on Lower Water Street—in the region. Our satisfied clients attest to it, as do our industry awards.

Would you hire a plumber to fix your car?

Of course not. It's a silly question. But it proves the point—if your company needs advertising or design work, then why would you look any further than the experts in advertising and design? Give us a call or drop by the office. We'd love to show you what we mean.

Don Johnson, Eddie Murphy, and Keanu Reeves already know exactly what we're talking about.
